

Kindergarten at the Dallas Arboretum

Report By: Sehen F.

On Friday October 20, 2006 Kindergarten went on their first field trip to the Dallas Arboretum. It was a cool and mild day. They toured the arboretum and learned about how plants interacted with systems. When they first loaded the bus the kids were so excited they could hardly stay in their seats! But when we were on our way back everyone (including the parent volunteers) almost fell asleep. They were outside all day and hyper too. Lauren T. and Nkechi D. are two kindergarteners that said the field trip was awesome and the chrysanthemums were beautiful. Even by looking at all their faces you could see their opinion of the trip. The teachers were also having a good time on the trip. They sure are excited for their next kindergarten adventure!
